

A. W. AUNER, SONG PUBLISHER & PRINTER,
Tenth and Race Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

BABY AND I.

Words and Music by C. R. Dockstader.

COPYRIGHT 1881 BY J. W. PEPPER. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

Words and Music for Piano, 35 Cts. Song for Stage with Orchestra Parts, 50 Cts. net.

Used by Permission of J. W. Pepper, Publisher of Band, Orchestra and Piano Music,
Novelties, etc., 8 W. Cor. Eighth & Locust Streets, Philadelphia. Catalogues free

Her bright eyes are blue, and her teeth are like pearl,
Her hair is light brown, she's her papa's own girl;
She sings pretty songs, in a voice low and sweet,
At evening she rocks her doll baby to sleep.
When the stars shine and the daylight is gone,
With her arms 'round my neck she sings pretty songs,
Until, growing weary, low droops the young head,
Her night prayer is said, and she's laid in her bed.

When the stars shine, and the daylight is gone,
With her arms round my neck she sings pretty songs
Until, growing weary, low droops the young head,
Her night prayer is said, and she's laid in her bed.

At morn when the daylight peeps in from above,
She greets me with kisses and fond words of love,
In sunshine she roams in the garden all day,
Her voice can be heard with the children at play.
Returning at night when my day's work is o'er,
Her bright eyes are watching for me at the door;
Contented and happy, there's never a sigh,
We love one another, my baby and I.

When the stars shine, and the daylight is gone,
With her arms 'round my neck, she sings pretty songs,
Until, growing weary, low droops the young head,
Her night prayer is said, and she's laid in her bed.

A. W. AUNER'S
CARD & JOE PRINTING ROOMS
Tenth and Race Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.